The Raymond Lions Club held a Meeting in the Club Rooms at the Opera House on Monday night at 7:30. Eighty per cent of the members turned out for a very busy business program. Charlie Ackroyd and Bill Greep were guests. Special guest entertainer was Herbe Bishop who played several very beautiful numbers on the piano for us. Come again Herbe—and thank you.

The Playground Committee gave a comprehensive report of work accomplished to date—they plan to finish the first set of equipment at the swimming pool this fall.

P. K. told us that his Blind Committee have the canvass all planned for the next meeting. They are going to have the students at the High School tested for eye defects. Then grade one will follow next. The Elementary School was checked last year. The Club purchased one pair of glasses this fall for a student badly in need of glasses.

The President and Secretary attended a Zone Meeting of Zone 2 in Governor Ken Long's District. Zone Chairman, L. L. Harker called the meeting in Cardston at the Cahoon Hotel on October 1st. The presidents and secretaries of all five Clubs were present. The group decided to hold their Charter Night Celebrations a little earlier this year. Hill Spring, Glenwood, Cardston, Magrath and Raymond are all fully organized and have their winter activities well under way. Cardston and Magrath are holding carnivals this month and Raymond will have one the last week in November.

A Real Musical Treat

Saturday, September 30th., a small but enthusiastic crowd was treated to a real thrill as the travelling company of singers entertained with a concert of classical and light opera songs. The troupe consisting of Vera Bryso, Soprano; Winnifred Hutt, Mezzo-Soprano; Karl Norman, Tenor; Derek MacDermot, Baritone, with Reginald J. Hawken at the piano, presented a variety of numbers in solos, duets, trios and quartets. They soon won the hearts of their listeners so that applause was spontaneous and vigorous.

The program consisted of three parts, the first being a series of numbers taken from the second act of "Martha". The singers entered into their parts with a will and seemed to enjoy every minute of it. The quartet showed fine blending of voices and gave them an opportunity to display a wide range of volume, expertly.

During the first part of the second section some lighter numbers were sung as solos and duets. Derek MacDermot thrilled his audience with "Yeomen of England". The solo "Habenera" from Carmen by Miss Hutt was feelingly rendered, however, one of the highlights of the whole show was the duet from Carmen by Miss Hutt and Mr. Norman. Their drama was good and their voices carried their roles superbly. This section was closed with eight lighter numbers from light opera such as "Villia", "Old Man River", "I'll See You Again", "Kiss Me" and "Tokay". "Old Man River" was greatly appreciated as was "Tokay" with its vigorous gay ending.

Mrs. Tommy Allen was a recent patient in the St. Michaels Hospital in Lethbridge.

Mr. and Mrs. T. George Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Taylor, C. R. Wing, John Allen, Lincoln Wood and S. C. N. Gray attended the opening ceremonies of the Taber Factory last week.

Legion Ladies Auxiliary

The October meeting of the L.A. to the Canadian Legion was held Monday, October 2nd, with about twenty members in attendance. Following the opening ceremonies a letter was read from the Zone President with regards to the Rally to be held in Lethbridge on October 16th. It is hoped that all our members will be able to attend, those interested are asked to contact Fern Thompson. Reports on Christmas card sales were given and several articles were turned in for the bazaar to be held in November. The Armistice Day Supper for Veterans was also planned. This was a big success last year and we hope that it will be enjoyed as much this time.

At the close of the business session lunch was served.

Want a Suite?

A couple of months ago we bought Cyril Layne's corner lot and became landowners in Raymond. Dad must have thought it was a pretty good deal because the other day he and Mother bought what he has christened "The Castle"—meaning of course Cyril's house. He has "elevated" my good and lovely wife to the exalted position of "Queen of the Castle". This "advancement" becomes effective on November 1st.

The Laynes plan to leave after the Factory Campaign is over to make their home, temporarily at least, on the west coast.

Lucky Second Ward

Last Thursday in the Recreation Hall of the Second Ward Church a delightful Supper, Program and Dance was held for all the members of the Ward.

The MIA was in charge of the evening's entertainment. Each family in the Ward was visited by officers of the MIA and invited to bring all members, young and old, out for an evening together.

Irene Bowden was in charge of organizing the supper and groups of ladies throughout the Ward were solicited to help prepare the food which they did very willingly and well and the officers of the Mutual wish to extend a hearty vote of thanks to these ladies for their help in making this event so successful.

On Wednesday evening the Superintendent of the YMMIA and his counselors assisted by putting up the tables and distributing the food to be cooked.

The tables were very tastefully decorated by Thursday at six o'clock when Bishop Jensen, Jim Harker and Pres. Palmer with their wives formed the welcoming committee at the door. At six-thirty the three large banquet tables were filled and Bishop Jensen asked the blessing on the food. By half past eight between 375 and 400 people had had a tasty supper of Baked Ham, Roast Veal, Potatoes and Gravy, Salad, Baked Squash, Buttered Beets and Carrots, Sliced Tomatoes, Pickles, Bread and Butter and Apple Pie (what a feed).

The Fourth Ward Relief Society Officers and Teachers met at the home of Mrs. Howard Rasmussen Tuesday afternoon to make plans for the coming season.

We are truly sorry that you have had to wait so long for your paper. Early Saturday afternoon we had a phone call from Roxie's brother in Lethbridge saying that her father had suffered a severe heart attack so we packed up and went in to see him. We are happy to report that at the present time, although he is far from well, his condition is improving. Thank you for being so patient.

ROTE SPOKES

All Rotarians who missed last Monday's meeting should be administered the boot to the back of their "Plus Fours". Yes sir, Jim Meeks was the speaker of the day. He told of how they first came to this country back in 1902 and went on to tell of some of their earlier experiences. His talk was given in the well known Jim Meeks manner, full of humor and common sense. So intensely interesting was it, that by popular demand Jim is going to continue the narrative in our next meeting.

After Jim has finished I would like to run the high points of his story in this column. I believe some of it has appeared before when Mrs. L. D. King wrote up the early history of our town. This type of biography bears repeating. So we will leave Jim's history for a week or so and—well, how about a short, short book review?

I hope that none of my lawyer friends among Rotarians will miss "Fifty Forensic Fables" by "O", another book from Britain and one I have found delightful in both drawings and text. These "Fables" by Theobald Mathew, famed and beloved British barrister who died in 1939, resemble those of George Ade both in form (except that rather formidable legal jargon replaces the slang) and in the dry and often sardonic wit. Perhaps one need not be a lawyer to be amused by such fables as that of the Kindly Judge and Little Effie (a Ward of Court), whose aunt and grandmother could not agree as to whether she should go to school.

The Kindly Judge Wisely Suggested that before Reading the Affidavits he should Interview Little Effie in his Private Room.

When Little Effie Presented herself the Kindly Judge (who was a Family Man) found himself attracted by her Cropped Head and her large Blue Eyes. To put Little Effie Completely at her Ease the Kindly Judge invited her to Try on his Wig and to Observe the Effect in his Looking-Glass. After a Pleasant Little Chat the Kindly Judge Resumed his Wig and Returned to Court. Counsel thereupon Set to Work.

"A Month Ago," ran Paragraph One of Grandmother's Affidavit, "Effie Suffered from a Bad Attack of Ring-Worm and her Head had to be shaved." The Kindly Judge forthwith Adjourned the Proceeding Sine Die, and sent his Clerk Out for a Bottle (Large Size) of Condy's Fluid.

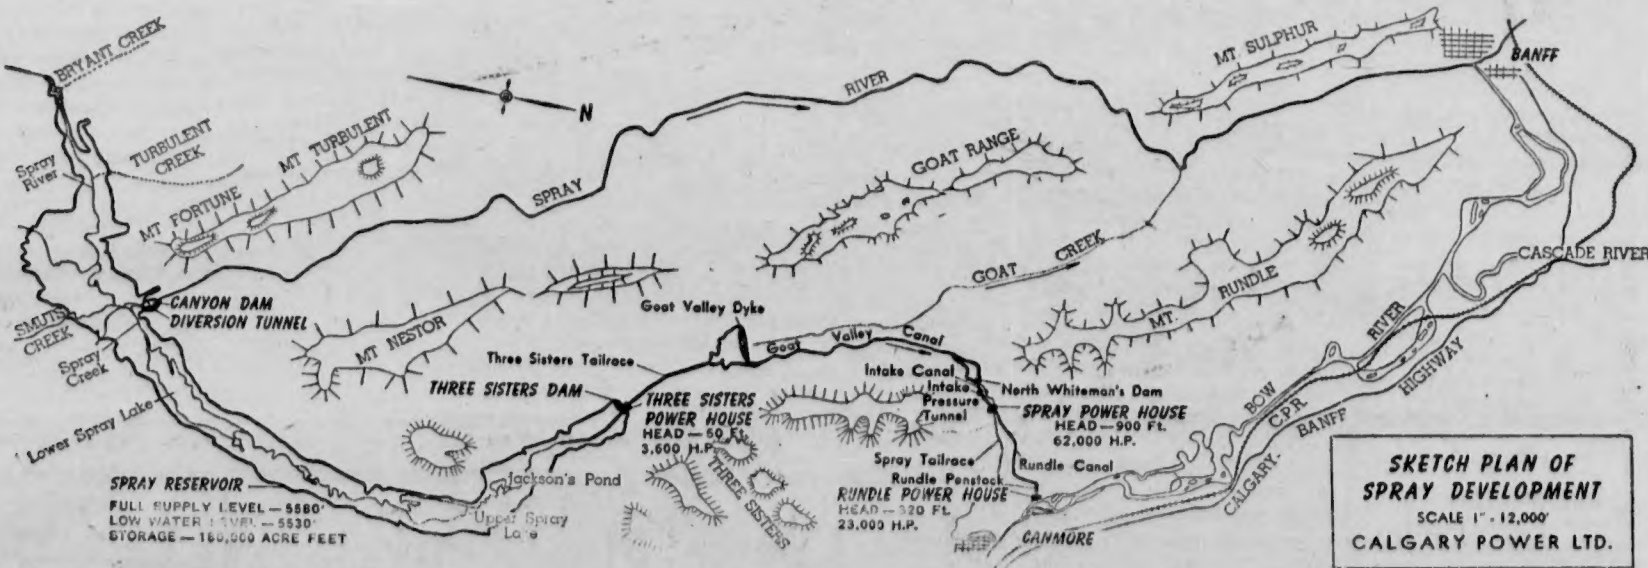

Moral: Read the Affidavits First.

John Pearson of Concord, New Hampshire, wondered why so many wealthy and presumably astute individuals fail to plan for the disposition of their estates on a basis to avoid heavy death taxes. This can be done by leaving funds to educational or research foundations, or by setting up tax-free charitable trusts.

In an article in the Atlantic Monthly Pearson cited one estate of $35,000,000 from which the widow realized only $5,000,000. Another estate of $10,690,000 paid $5,400,000 in death taxes.

In leaving $500,000 to a university, one rich man is said to have remarked

Here at last is the story of the Calgary Power trip. It would be an impossibility to give you a full account, so here it is in brief.

The Calgary Power Company is a big outfit and they really do things in a big way—thousands of cubic yards, thousands of horsepower and millions of dollars—all very common expressions heard when in the company of Calgary Power men. They decided that you people should know a little more about their company so they invited about fifty weekly editors (no wives, dang it) to be their guests at a week end tour of the new Spray Lakes development.

To start at the beginning. On Friday Sept. 15th, Don Fretts from Milk River and Max Sabey from Magrath helped Roxie and I fold our papers and then we were off—leaving my good and lovely wife all alone—to Calgary. To say it was an uneventful trip would be a long way from the truth. Our first "experience" was running out of gas just after we passed through Claresholm but this was soon fixed up by a kind young fellow who gave Don and I transportation to the gas pump and back, so we were soon on our way again—always careful to remind Mr. Fretts to keep the tank full.

The rooms on the fifth floor of the Royal Hotel are small. We know 'cause we spent Friday night there. Imagine—if you can—the vacant space in a small room holding big "Bimbo" Sabey and little old me.

Saturday morning the Calgary Power office looked somewhat like the first morning in a Manning Depot of the RCAF—lots of men moving around with no one sure of what comes next. After getting our identification tags and meal tickets we were ushered into a Conference room and given a general idea of the trip, by the genial public relations man for Calgary Power, Bill Ross. He promised that there would be no great speeches and his word was good. After his little talk, the Production Superintendent Tom Stanley, who comes from High River, explained roughly what the Company was doing to make the Spray Lakes development possible. It was rather hard to comprehend the magnitude of the project even with the help of an engineer, a map and a pointer, so suffice it to say the Company is changing the work of Mother Nature greatly—making rivers run backwards, digging canals through solid rock, moving thousands of cubic yards of earth for dams and one particularly outstanding feat, in my humble opinion, was making a tunnel 1,236 feet long with an average diameter of 10 feet 6 inches. The slope of this tunnel is 45 degrees and the work was carried on from both ends and through the genius of engineering the crews met in the centre with almost deadly accuracy. Just one more figure—it took 148 tons of steel lining for this wonder of mechanics.

The road the chartered Greyhound bus took us over was constructed at a cost of millions of dollars (one and a quarter I believe) by Calgary Power and when all construction work on the project is completed the road will be turned over to the government. Right now it takes a lot of skill and cool courage to drive a big 55 passenger bus over it.

CALGARY POWER TRIP (continued from page one)

Well I can't tell you too much more about the technical part of our trip so I will tell you about the lemon pie and great huge steak. At the construction camp they fed us—and how! The above mentioned items on the menu were all you could ask for and there was plenty of it. It was a dinner fit for kings and that is almost the way Calgary Power made us feel.

After a few pictures were taken we headed on to Banff to the new Cascade Hotel. It really looked like the conventions you read about—everyone going around with a label on his lapel.

The cocktail party in the solarium took a couple of hours and then came supper—again a delightful meal. After supper Max Sabey, Gordon Neal, Claresholm, and I went to the show while a lot of other people did a lot of other things.

Saturday night an extra side trip to the Chair Lift was planned so after breakfast Sunday morning we really found out what hairpin turns are. On one turn the driver saw that he wasn't going to make it so he leaned out the window and gave the rest of the bus a shove—that's the truth! The lift is a wonderful thing. I'm really sorry that Roxie and I didn't go on it this summer because it gives you a never-to-be-forgotten thrill and is certainly worth the dollar and a half it costs. The view of Banff from the road leading to the Lift is something to see but the view from the top of Mt. Norquay is really something to marvel at.

Back to Banff and into the buses for our return trip by way of Lake Minnewanka and the Cascade power plant. At this point we stopped to see a generator in action. For our benefit it was shut down and then started again by remote control. That is a very interesting point, I think. All these plants at some time in the near future will be operated from one place—the procedure was explained to us but you know me—I'm just a dummy!

The plan originally called for a visit to the Ghost Dam but time would not permit it so we wheeled right on to Calgary.

In finishing up this little story I would like to pay tribute to both the company and the men of the company. Some of these men are: Mr. Randle, Mr. Tanner (who wrote words to a song that we will print sometime), Jerry White, Public Relations, A. Bell, Advertising, and many more. The weekly editors owe a debt of gratitude to Calgary Power Limited for giving us so unstintingly of their time and money to show us behind the scenes of power development. Again we say "Thank you kindly".

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Watson have had as their guests the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver McLean, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Logan McLean, from Medicine Hat and Mrs. Jean Parker (Mrs. Watson's sister) from Rosemary. They have also been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Watson.

Lucky Second Ward (continued from page one)

The teachers and officers acted as hosts at the tables and the Gleaners, MIA Males and Bee Hive Girls did a wonderful job of serving. Credit also goes to Doris Court and Mrs. Rudd and all who helped in keeping the dishes cleared away.

At eight-thirty all were invited into the chapel where Bill Nalder and Reed Walker had a delightful program arranged with genial Bill as M.C.

The young folks under MIA age were bid adieu at about nine o'clock and the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing.

Laurie Harker and Joe Stevenson attended Conference in Salt Lake last week.

LIONS

The Musical Show sponsored by the Lions was a great success and a flat failure. A very small audience was thrilled by the four singers of "A Night in Vienna"—a program produced by The Basil Horsfall Productions of Vancouver. These artists perform in the Theatre Under the Stars of Vancouver, and in the winter make tours of the major towns and cities of Canada. They did not clear expenses on our show. However, if the people in Raymond really appreciate good music, this fine troupe is willing to come back at some later date and try again. If you would like to hear them present "Calvacade of Song", tell the Lions about it and we will try to arrange for a later production.

We hear a great deal about the wonderful interest taken in true culture in Raymond. Many think we are pretty high in the scale ourselves. Still three thousand people cannot secure the talent brought in by many little communities like Blairmore or Coleman. Programs like the one given here Saturday night bring five and six hundred people to the hall in either Blairmore or Coleman. Can't we stand real music? Or are we too busy with a thousand and one little things to allow time for some of the finest things in life? What say you? Shall we bring them back or tell them we are not interested in such stuff?

As Ye Sow

The success of your business and my business, in a great measure, depends on how favorably the prospect reacts to the little attentions you may give them. No matter what your business may be you can't be too much of a success unless you truly like people—thats something you can't manufacture. If the customer is one that you see frequently you can get to know his or her likes and dislikes in a hurry and act accordingly.

We know that if some nice person doesn't seem to think so well of you and your efforts, in nine times out of ten cases it's your own fault, not his. It's your business—and mine—not to correct that real or imaginary impression. We must think well of others and have others think well of us.

For Parents Only

By Nancy Cleaver

Thanksgiving Thoughts

"Thanksgiving should mean more than the gathering of the fruit and vegetables from the garden and the reunion of the family in one home for a turkey dinner," a mother said thoughtfully.

"It should be a time when we, as parents, express our gratitude to God in private prayer and by our attendance at public worship, for our children. Mothers and fathers should consider whether or not they are encouraging the growth of a thankful attitude in their children."

"What are the things for which you are most grateful? Have you ever asked your children this question? It is a good question for grown-ups too because older people are apt to take their blessings for granted! In Glasgow a little while ago the school children were asked:

"What are the loveliest things you know, persons not counted?"

Here are some of their answers—"The crunch of dry leaves when you walk through them; the feel of clean clothes; cool wind on a hot day; hot water bottle in bed; climbing up a hill and looking down; our dog's eyes; street light on the river; the smell of rain; an organ playing; red roofs in trees; smoke rising; rain on your cheeks; the smell of new mown hay; red velvet; the moon in the clouds; the feel of running; looking into deep clear water; the taste of strawberries; a swallow flying; water being cut at the bow of a boat; a mounted policeman's horse; an express train rushing; a builder's crane lifting something heavy; the feel of a dive; a thrush singing."

These Scottish boys and girls showed that they were very keenly aware of the out-of-doors. Perhaps their parents had taken them on walks in the country when they were small. Likely they had encouraged them when they were older to go on hikes in their leisure time.

Scottish children are no more fortunate than our own Canadian boys and girls in their country. Think of the color and variety of our changing seasons—Spring with the delicate green, Summer with its sunny skies and blue lakes, Autumn with its harvest of fruits and vegetables when the leaves are turning scarlet and gold, and winter with its miracle of white snow. Fortunate is the child who has been taught by his father and mother that the world in all its beauty of form and color is the "handwork of the Lord."

Gratitude to God is expressed in many prayers written for children. But mothers do well to encourage a little child during his prayer at bedtime to thank God in his own words. If he can, for any special thing which he has enjoyed. A. A. Milne's poem which pictures Christopher Robin saying his evening prayer is an appealing one. The small boy's words, "Thank you God, for a lovely day" may well be added to a child's bedtime petitions.

Karl Wilde, accompanied by Earl Hacking of Cardston and Don Martin of Calgary, recently spent four days in Calgary, Edmonton and the Peace River district on business.

The final part was a fitting climax to the program as selections from the opera "Faust" were presented. Miss Bryson as Marguerite, Mr. Norman as Faust and Mr. MacDermot as Mephistopheles caught the sense of the dramatic in their roles and their voices matched their acting.

During the evening the singers wore costumes for their roles, especially outstanding was the dress of Mephistopheles.

The evening was one of the finest cultural programs to appear in Raymond in many years. Only the great number of people who were not there missed a high point in their entertainment.

The local Lions Club is to be congratulated for bringing this fine group of all Canadian talent to our Town and we hope that they will bring them back again, when it would be fitting for three or four times as many people to attend.

that the donation cost his heirs just $25,000.

Pearson's inquiry adds new lustre to an ancient Chinese proverb: "He who seeks to be rich will not be benevolent; he who wishes to be benevolent will not be rich."

Another thought is that no individual likes to spend a great volume of time in planning his death. Furthermore, some men dislike to discuss the division of their estate with their wives, fearing that the suggestion that some of the money is going to benevolent institutions may lead to a family row. Other men mistrust confiding too much of their private affairs to lawyers and bankers. A few, more than is realized, believe that money paid in taxes does more for the common good than money given to charity.

How professional optimists manage to keep grinding so much of the time is a sort of trade secret that they do not like to divulge to outsiders.

It bothers some people to see home used as a synonym of house. You don't sell a home, you sell a house. You let a contract for the building of a house, not a home. Home connotes a way of life. As Edgar Guest says, "It takes a heap of living in a house to make it a home."

The word dollar, so much heard these days all over the world, is actually of German origin, spelled thaler. It was a common word around 1600 in European financial transactions, although Shakespeare preferred the Latin-derived ducat, and pirates called them pieces-of-eight.

It derives from the German word Thal, meaning dale or valley. There were rich silver mines in the Bohemian mountains, especially at Joachimsthal. The first dollar was coined there. Containing an ounce of silver, it became the standard coin for a large territory.

Ten dimes or four quarters still approximate an ounce, but the adulteration makes the weight light. Since gold coins have always been more or less scarce, silver has been the poor man's money. Westerners still carry cart-wheels of metal although they wear out a pocket fast.

Our one-dollar bills state that silver to that amount is payable on demand. The paper money of some countries is scarcely worth the expense of printing it—at least in the smaller denominations. There is too often no metal of any kind behind it.

So until next week this is your Rote Reporter who has come to the conclusion that no matter what happens, there is always someone who knew it would.

This is no time for a Race!

The unseen figure of Death rides beside the motorist who races a train to a level crossing. The way may be clear, and there may seem to be a split second in which to avert calamity. Unfortunately for many of the 140 who were killed and the 549 who were injured in 443 railway crossing accidents in Canada in the 12-month period ended June 30th. last, the train was moving faster than they judged, or they were closer to the point of impact than they imagined and they paid a high price for their impatience. The old rule of STOP, LOOK and LISTEN applies with more force than ever today when more trucks and automobiles are on the road. Make sure you have a clear path over the crossing; obey the signs placed there for your protection. It's better to be delayed a minute than to be killed or maimed.
